ProcessPro Expands Its Sales Force

St. Cloud, Minn., July 30, 2009 -- ProcessPro, developers of ProcessPro[®] Premier ERP software, is expanding its sales force to meet current market demands. ProcessPro has recently added four new members to its sales team: two Business Development Representatives and two Regional Sales Managers.

The newest Business Development Representatives, Mark Young and Shannon Gilb, both of St. Cloud, come to ProcessPro with significant sales and business development experience.

"We're excited about the business development potential these two individuals bring to the team," comments Joe Blauert, President of ProcessPro. "They are skilled in listening to and addressing the needs of the customer. Additionally, their professional, enthusiastic approach brings new life to the sales process."

It is also significant that ProcessPro has added two Regional Sales Managers to the team as well. Cheryl Irons of California and Gary Selberg of Minneapolis both bring extensive ERP, Supply Chain, and Manufacturing software sales experience to the ProcessPro sales group. Their leadership in sales will develop and nurture the growing momentum on the sales team.

"Having worked for a competitor of ProcessPro, I feel exceptionally competent that I understand the market in need of ERP software," says Cheryl Irons. "What is especially exciting for me is that ProcessPro[®] software is the most complete ERP package I've worked with in meeting the needs of that market. It's a product I know I'll feel good about sharing with ProcessPro clients."

ProcessPro is moving onward and upward. The addition of these qualified sales members is only the beginning of a new era in leading the market for providing a complete ERP system to manufacturers across the country. As our company continues to grow, we will continue to add key people to support market demands.
